New Year's Greetings!

We hope that 2017 was a prosperous year for all our clients, friends, employees and the communities we serve. As we begin 2018, we hope the new year brings success and joy to all.

2017 saw AI focus on new technology. After publishing a revamped newsletter - now styled the AI Outlook - on small business, we released a second Outlook on technology. This Outlook focused on new and upcoming technology in the engineering, transportation and construction industries, as well as within our own company. We also unveiled our brand new Intranet, which has given our employees a centralized location for all the information they may need about the company, their benefits, and the work we do at AI. We've continued our lunch and learn series, educating our employees on new technology in the industry. We believe that technology has the potential to resolve integration challenges in the engineering industry, and we want to be a leader in adopting those ideas.

AI Corporate Headquarters Open House

This year saw a major addition - literally - to our headquarters in Middletown. AI added 8,000 square feet to our building, while also completely updating and refurbishing our existing space. New conference rooms, a new marketing area, and a new multi-purpose room are just a few of the upgrades we made to our building. The added space was designed to support collaboration and cross discipline learning, and it will allow AI to continue to grow as a regional leader in our industry.

We celebrated the completion of construction on our office with an open house and ribbon cutting ceremony attended by Governor Dan Malloy, Attorney General George Jepson, and CBIA President Joe Brennan.

We want to thank everyone who came out to celebrate this milestone with us!

AI Holiday Party

On December 8th, AI celebrated its annual holiday party at the Cromwell, CT Radisson. It was a fun night with food, drinks, dancing, prizes and a few surprises for our guests. Our holiday party is also an opportunity to recognize some of our employees for their exemplary service and hard work throughout the year.
